U. S. TANKS SHATTER WEST NORMANDY LINE REDS GIVE NAZIS WORST DEFEATS OF WAR

Lwow, Bialystok And Stanislawow Fall to Russians

Soviets 30 Miles
Away from Warsaw

By W. W. HERCHER

LONDON, Friday, July 28 (AP)—Russian troops, inflicting the war's most disastrous series of defeats on the Germans, yesterday plunged to within thirty miles of Warsaw, captured the great city of Lwow and the other enemy bastions, and crossed the San river in a wide sweep toward Germany itself.

Lwow, Bialystok, and Stanislawow, ancient Polish fortresses, fell to the Soviet tide pouring westward through broken German armies, along with 1,635 other cities, towns and villages. This was the greatest one-day bag yet announced by Moscow during the gigantic Soviet summer offensive.

Nazi Escape Barred

In the north Daugavpils and Rēzekne in Latvia and Sauliai, strategic rail junction in Lithuania, also were seized, and the capture of Sauliai plugged the last main enemy escape route out of the Baltic states.

Routed German armies nearly everywhere appeared to be falling back in precipitate flight, and military men here now believe the Germans may retire to the Oder river in Eastern Germany itself. They based this belief on the almost two-miles-an-hour pace of the Russians, and the lack of any sign that the Germans would attempt to hold on the Vistula river in Poland.

Berlin itself said the Vistula defenses had been pierced southeast of Warsaw, and that water barrier, the last natural defense line short of the Oder.

128 Miles from Silesia

German Silesia is only 140 miles west of the Vistula, where the Germans said the Russians had crossed, and farther south other Soviet units were reported officially by Moscow to have crossed the San river on a fifty-mile front and raced seven miles beyond to a point only 128 miles from Silesia.

The capture of Garwolin by Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky's First White Russian army troops put the Soviets within thirty miles southeast of Warsaw, and the Russian communiqué also said that other Red army shock troops had fought their way into Siedlce, large city only fifty miles east of Warsaw.

Guns Heard in Warsaw

The crash of Soviet artillery could be heard in the Polish capital which the Germans took in the first month of the war begun Sept. 1, 1939. By capturing Garwolin the Russians (Continued on Page 17, Col. 4)

Robots Causing Alarm in London

LONDON, July 27 (AP)—The Nazis' flying bomb barrage increased in ferocity tonight, spreading death through Southern England, while British bombers pondered the possibility of worse to come—perhaps huge explosive rockets.

The prospect that Germany's threatened new secret weapon might be a ten-ton explosive rocket—a robot bomb ten times the size of the V-1 now being used against England—"may not be sheer propaganda," a commentator at an Allied advance command post said today.

British Lancaster and Stirling bombers are using their big six-ton factory-busters to smash possible V-2 launching sites in Nazi territory and these big RAF craft struck again in daylight this evening against the flying bomb area of Northern France. None of the planes were lost.

Port of Cherbourg Is So Completely Wrecked It Is Practically Useless

WASHINGTON, July 27 (AP)—The mystery of the limited Allied offensive in Normandy got its first real illumination today when Secretary of War Stimson disclosed that the port of Cherbourg, captured a month ago, was so completely wrecked by the enemy that it still is all but useless to the Allies.

In a discussion of beachhead operations at a news conference, the secretary, just returned from an inspection of the Normandy front, let it be known that virtually all men and supplies for the invasion forces still have to be landed on the D-Day beaches.

Lt. Gen. Lesley J. McNair Killed In Action on the Normandy Front

"BRAINS OF THE ARMY"

His Name Included in Total Casualties of 313,000

By THOMAS A. REEDY

Lt. Gen. Lesley J. McNair

WASHINGTON, July 27 (AP)—Lt. Gen. Lesley J. McNair, intrepid "brains of the army," has been killed in Normandy, and coincidentally it was announced that world war two now has exacted a greater toll of dead and wounded Americans than the entire 1917-18 conflict.

Both announcements were made today by the War department. Chief of Staff George C. Marshall used the highest accolade an officer can pay a colleague when he called the 61-year-old McNair the brains behind the ground forces he built from scratch to a mighty war machine.

Wounded Year Ago

The general, wounded once on an inspection tour of the Tunisian battlefields more than a year ago, was on special assignment in Normandy when he was killed by enemy gunfire.

The disclosure was made shortly after Secretary of War Stimson released new battle casualty figures reflecting vividly the fierce fighting on far-flung fronts. Total American casualties now exceed 313,000, including more than 63,000 dead.

World War One casualties numbered 278,828, of whom approximately 60,000 were combat deaths. The figures apply to all branches of service.

World War One lasted nineteen months, for the United States; this conflict is in its thirty-first, for the Americans.

The approximate casualties now are: dead, wounded, prisoners missing.

Army, 297,283.
Navy, 50,446.
Sailors, 16,463.
Guards, 3,018.
Normandy, 24,162.
Air Forces, 11,665.
Total, 313,084.

Heavy Losses in Italy

The army's ground forces in the Italian campaign totaled 75,496—13,382 killed, 51,194 wounded and 10,920 missing or captured. The air force figure is for the corps operating in and out of the Italian theater. Losses in other theaters (Continued on Page 17, Col. 1)

6,500 On Strike, Survey Reveals

Big Superfortress
Plant Is Tied Up

(By The Associated Press)
Labor disputes yesterday (Thursday) kept approximately 6,500 workers on the sidelines.

The largest number of idle was in Cleveland, where five plants of the Ohio Crankshaft Company, manufacturers of Superfortress parts, have been out of production since Monday and 3,000 employees have been off their jobs because of the dismissal of two inspectors. Officials of the CIO United Auto Workers threatened to take over the local union unless the work stoppage is ended soon.

Strike in Cleveland

Also in Cleveland, wage controversies resulted in the idleness of 1-100 at the National Machine & Steel Castings Company, which produces castings for military trucks and more than 700 at the John March Bronze foundry.

An estimated 600 workers walked out at the Chevrolet gear and axle plant in Detroit, makers of tappets and valves for aircraft engines in a protest against the disciplining of several men accused of failure to meet production requirements.

At the same time, production of Superfortress parts was resumed at the Centrifugal Pumping Company in Lansing, Mich., after members of the A.F. of M. United Auto Workers decided to "recess" a walkout which had involved pay and had affected about 100 employees.

Accuses Petrillo

Stanley Hubbard, president of radio station KSTP, reported in Minneapolis he planned federal court action in his contract dispute with James C. Petrillo, head of the American Federation of Musicians. Hubbard said he would seek to recover damages allegedly stemming from Petrillo's strike order to musicians employed by the station.

While sixteen unionists were out at the Minneapolis studio, Petrillo announced in Chicago he was "studying" a telegram from Hubbard offering to withdraw legal proceedings if the strike is terminated.

At Savannah, Ga., 2,800 AFL welders agreed to end a two-day work stoppage at the southeastern shipyards. The trouble was caused by the resignation of a supervisor.

Four hundred foundry employees were off duty in Chicago, and 700 persons were out at the hotel Statler in Detroit.

Gov. Dewey Hopes To End Friction In Government

Discusses Campaign
With Running Mate

By WILLIAM W. TYLER

ALBANY, N. Y., July 27 (AP)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey indicated today his presidential campaign would be pitched heavily on the theme of "conflict" between federal, state and local governments, which he said "has been a constant source of friction for twelve years in this country."

With his running mate, Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio, seated beside him, the GOP presidential nominee told newspapermen that success for the efforts of Republican governors meeting in St. Louis Aug. 2 and 3 to settle areas of "responsibility" between federal and state governments would "wholly unite the Republican party as it goes before the people."

Would End Petty Bickering

Adding it would "also unite the viewpoints of the twenty-six states headed by Republican governors, where three quarters of the American people live," Dewey declared.

"That means that the disgraceful spectacle of petty bickering and constant warfare between the various units of government will come to an end on next Jan. 20."

Dewey listed fifteen subjects to be offered the St. Louis conference for consideration, asserting "some or all" were included in "the areas in which this continuous, needless warfare has been waged by the New Deal, which we should attempt to settle, not permanently, of course, but for the next four years."

Reporting he and Bricker had explored all of the subjects, besides discussing campaign plans "rather extensively," Dewey said:

Agrees with Bricker

"We found ourselves in disagreement on nothing."

Bricker nodded and injected one comment of "Pete" as Dewey dictated a statement that "enough people are spending full time fighting each other over the jurisdiction and power between the federal, state and local governments to make up a small army."

"We conceive it to be one of our first obligations to bring agreement out of this chaos and to bring unity where there is only disunity now," the presidential candidate added.

Subjects to be considered by the governors' conference, Dewey disclosed, include public expenditures, unemployment insurance, administration of employment services "surrendered by the states in the war emergency," relationship of unemployment and employment services, highways, veterans affairs, regulations of all kinds of insurance and water and flood control and conservation of natural resources.

German Tanks Smashed

In five miles on one highway approaching this town were the wrecks of eighteen German tanks. Some forty-five-ton panthers had been torn in two by bombs or shells and lay smoldering, only a small portion of the armor that has been grounded under the American advance.

Disembodied bodies of tank crews lay half covered by the wreckage. The spearhead of the armored column has pushed on three miles to Le Mesnil Herman from this town, but shells are still falling here and their tanks are attacking our flank a few thousand yards west.

The main action was in this Marigny break-through area. With clock-like precision, a more spearhead broke through the first German defense, then the reserves, then the artillery positions.

Medieval veterans of this and the Mediterranean campaign followed up, widened the gap, then turned east and west, pushing back the flanks and infantry.

Infantry Spreads Out

Through the hole in the middle of the German line, the middle and infantry force, rolling through fields, roads and town, fanning out deep behind the German lines.

The road before our jeep twists and forks in a most confusing manner, but military police at every crossroads are directing thundering columns of tanks and truck loads.

Fighter Pilots Score

Twenty of yesterday's seventy-eight Allied victories in Southern Europe were scored by American fighter pilots in the Ploesti-Bucharest area on their return.

City of Sacramento Is Declared Out of Bounds to Armed Forces

SAN FRANCISCO, July 27 (AP)—The navy announced without explanation today that the entire city of Sacramento had been declared "out of bounds" for all military, coast guard and navy personnel excepting those on authorized leave.

Fifteen shore patrol men and one officer were on their way to Sacramento to handle the situation.

The Sacramento Bee said the twelfth naval district had issued the order as the result of a street fight last night among service men and civilians.

During the altercation, police said, Charles Robert Redifer, 28, a sailor, was shot accidentally by Pvt. Leroy Clark, a negro military policeman, when someone touched Clark's pistol. The police declared Redifer was not participating in the fight and said his wound was not serious.

Police Captain George Lofquist said several incidents of fights between military personnel and civilians have been reported recently.

BATTLE ACTION ON FAST-MOVING RUSSIAN FRONT

IN ONE OF THE RARE PICTURES that have come from the current sweep of Russia's armies, Soviet tommy-gunners are shown advancing on the run through a street of Pskov against the fire of battered and retreating Nazis. Notice the smoke of a shellburst (left), the ruins of bombardment, the debris littering the pavement—but notice also that the debris is relatively light and that some buildings stand almost intact. These details indicate the speed with which Pskov, last important enemy-held city on Russian soil, was snatched from the German invaders.

Wes Gallagher Says:

Eye Witness of American Advance
In Normandy Describes Great Drive

By WES GALLAGHER

WITH THE AMERICAN FIRST ARMY IN CANISY, July 27 (AP)—Lt. Gen. Omar N. Bradley, the "dough boys' general," cracked the French front wide open today with a precision attack by tanks, infantry and warplanes.

Miles and miles of American columns raced through a six-mile wide gap ripped between the still burning town and the tank force which struck from Marigny to within less than five miles of Coutances.

German Tanks Try to Escape

The Germans were frantically trying to escape from Bradley's trap north of the Sienne river, and the battered remains of seven Nazi divisions of the Eighty-fourth corps were hammered without mercy by the Ninth air force. Tanks, trucks and other vehicles were being smashed by the score.

From yesterday morning until noon today more than 2,400 prisoners passed into the First army camps, and the roads were choked in places with hundreds more.

Everywhere, for miles, the roads and fields are plowed by thousands upon thousands of bomb holes from the great air barrage of opening day.

There is the smell of death over the whole area, for Hitler's Herrenvolk lie in the sun along the roads and in the fields.

Nazi Resistance Weakens in Italy

Polish Troops
Join in Attacks

By GEORGE TUCKER

ROME, July 27 (AP)—Driving up the Adriatic coast of Italy against weakening German resistance, Polish troops have pushed seventeen miles beyond the captured port of Ancona and seized Senigallia at the mouth of the Misa river only twenty-two miles from Pesaro. Allied headquarters announced tonight.

The German radio reported yesterday that the vengeful Poles had opened a full-scale offensive in the Adriatic sector as part of the general Allied push toward the enemy's "Gothic line" defenses, but there was no Allied confirmation until tonight's special announcement.

Close in on Florence

Pesaro, next objective of the Poles, is believed to be an outpost of the "Gothic line," whose main fortifications are said to be anchored on Rimini, another twenty miles up the coast.

British, New Zealand and South African troops engaged in closing a steel clamp on Florence gained up to four miles at some points in bitter fighting, winning positions within six miles of the Arno river west of the historic city.

Battle-ried New Zealanders were making the brunt of fierce German counterattacks in their push directly north up highway No. 2 in the area of San Casciano, where they were within eight miles of the heart of Florence. In the past three days they had captured more than 100 Nazi parachute troops, cream of the enemy's forces in Italy.

Allies Plan Landings

A German broadcast declared, as on several previous occasions, that the Allies were preparing to make new seaborne landings near Genoa on the west coast of Italy, some seventy-five miles above the present battlefield. It said that a large fleet of transports and landing craft and "several divisions" of troops had been massed for the attempt.

Indications grew that American troops drawn up along the Arno from the West coast inland would be forced to take the ancient city of Pisa by storm and perhaps turn their artillery against the celebrated leaning tower, which the Nazis had converted into an observation post.

Nazi Factory Shelled

Three hundred and fifty-two times our guns—all the way from the sturdy 105's to the thunderous 240 howitzers—poured earth-shaking loads into the southern German factory area just east of town. Considerable troop movements had been spotted there the past two days and since it was just outside the city limits, the order to fire was given.

If there were troops in this tree-screened sector, probably 200 yards wide just above the Arno river, they're not on hand now. From this outpost through field glasses I saw shells hurl up huge veils of grey and red dust and smoke, carrying debris, bricks and pieces of buildings high into the air.

Several Doughboys Hit

There have been several casualties among doughboys in the southern half of the town for machine-gun fire from the northern portion and artillery officers say that if the enemy concentrations there prove sufficiently dangerous to our soldiers American artillery will be forced to fire.

"If Jerry has enough stuff there to wound one of our men, then I believe we would shoot," one ranking infantry officer said today.

"After all, we can send engineers in later to repair the leaning tower but we can't repair one of our boys when he's gone."

AN AMERICAN OBSERVATION POST NEAR PISA, July 27 (AP)—A battering barrage from the mightiest American guns blasted a Nazi-held area only a mile and a quarter from the famous leaning tower today while Fifth army officials, proceeding with utmost caution to save the tower and other ancient monuments, debated whether to turn the full fury of the artillery on the northern half of Pisa itself.

Advancing Yanks May Trap Seven Nazi Divisions

Battered Germans
In Chaotic Flight

By JAMES M. LONG

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Friday, July 28 (AP)—Lightning United States tank columns shattered the German Western Normandy line yesterday in a sudden break-through that plunged the enemy into chaotic retreat and drove to within five miles of strategic Coutances, whose fall might trap the entire Eighty-fourth corps of seven battered Nazi divisions.

Thundering lines of tanks, half-tracks and self-propelled artillery, revealed by supreme headquarter orders for the first time to be striking in divisional strength in the greatest armored blow since D-Day, smashed all organized resistance, field commanders declared.

Nazis Abandon Lessay

Without a fight the enemy yielded the old seacoast stronghold of Lessay, twelve miles north of Coutances, and Periers to the west, and fled south under a hail of bombs and shell fire to try to make a stand, possibly around Coutances.

But the midnight communiqué disclosed that besides the column driving head-on toward Coutances from the east, a second column fanned out four miles southwest of Coutances in what may be an outflanking threat to that next stop on the American drive deeper into France.

Field dispatches said one armored finger had stabbed to Cerisy La Salle, seven miles southwest of Coutances, and another half-mile southeast of Coutances.

The column heading straight down the road toward the city had enveloped Camprond, north of the highway and less than five miles from Coutances.

Coutances Doomed

Coutances already was within artillery range and it appeared it could not hold out for long with the sporadic resistance the bewildered enemy is offering on this sector of the flaming forty-mile front. Prisoners up to noon totaled 2,600 and tank crews did not bother to corral them.

Yet another tank column, pouring through a gap in the German lines around Canisy, in a gain of up to six miles captured Le Mesnilherman, six miles southwest of St. Lo.

This thrust, drawing a steel ring about the Germans who from the strategic heights south of St. Lo to Avranches, thirty miles south, which is the side door to the Brittany peninsula and its naval base of Brest. (Continued on Page 17, Col. 3)

Record One-Day Bag for Russians

(By The Associated Press)

These are the major cities overrun by the Red army Thursday in its greatest one-day bag of the war.

Daugavpils, third largest city in Latvia with population of 45,000, and Rēzekne, rail junction to the northeast, swept up in drive reaching within 110 miles of Baltic sea.

Sauliai, rail junction in Lithuania seventy-three miles southwest of Riga, stride last big escape route for German armies in Latvia and Estonia.

Bialystok, Polish city of 91,000 population guarding approach to Warsaw, 110 miles to the southwest. Some Soviet units already in Siedlce, only fifty miles east of Warsaw.

Lwow, city of 317,000, third largest city in Poland, a one-way rail junction, ranking as the largest in Europe.

Stanislawow, of 60,000 population, lying sixty-five miles southeast of Lwow on the road to the Czechoslovak border.

Barr Promises Third Party Ticket To Oppose Roosevelt and Truman

WASHINGTON, July 27 (AP)—to get elected on the ballot pledged to the same Democrat other than the president.

Texas and Mississippi Democrats have already freed their electors to vote for a Democrat other than the party nominee, Louisiana and Alabama factions have taken preliminary steps toward the same aim.

It carried through in a close election, the presidential contest might be thrown into the House.

Barr made no reference to the fact that Senator Byrd got only eighty-nine votes in Chicago and in a statement, "At the proper moment we shall make the necessary announcements. There will be genuine Democratic ticket for the electoral college."

Barr did not detail any of his plans, but he is believed to be preparing to go South to lend a hand to dissident Democrats in trying, through petition and other means,

A Lesson the World Should Know by Now

ON ALL THE FRONTS Germany is reeling from the blows being dealt it. On all fronts since D-day, Germany has lost an average of two generals every three days, through death, surrender or "accident." It is a startling decline of a great military power.

Germany is beaten—but the war is not over. Not by a long shot. Normally, in a military situation of this kind it could be expected that the military population would rise in revolt and get rid of the leaders who had led them to disaster and then sue for peace. But if there is a spark of resistance to Hitler left in the German people, it has been kept a great secret.

Perhaps there has been no more successful tyranny inflicted upon a nation in a hundred years. It has been complete and thoroughly overpowering. There seems not the remotest chance of an uprising on the part of the people. The Germans are not giving up. They are still trying to pull some rabbit out of the hat—if not military, then diplomatic.

Historians can well look upon the war with detached but intense interest. Are the Germans going to get away with it again? Nobody knows. They are trying to work again what they have worked successfully before. It is conceivable that they might succeed.

What is going on now in Germany seems obvious. It is a struggle for power. The German generals would like to surrender to the Russians. The military elite thinks in terms of military might only. The German generals still think they could make some sort of deal with the Russians. The Junker industrialists would prefer to surrender to the Anglo-American forces.

And there it is. The army trying to save its own skin—for Germany's future. The Junker landholders trying to save theirs—for Germany's future.

Germany's future, and the world's future, depend upon a peace that will do away with the German militarists and the Junkers for good. The world cannot exist with Hitler or any of the little Hitlers in it. It is a lesson that the world should have learned by now. It has been a costly lesson—the cost reckoned in blood.

Smith, Caraway Defeats Of No Great Significance

AS THE Baltimore Evening Sun observes, it would be rash to read any great political significance into the defeat of "Cotton Ed" Smith for renomination to the Senate in South Carolina and the defeat of Mrs. Hattie Caraway in Arkansas.

The Evening Sun points out that "Cotton Ed" has been holding the office for six terms and his retirement is probably due to a feeling that thirty-six years is enough for any man than to a desire to punish him for his long opposition to President Roosevelt on agricultural issues. For one thing, his retirement is an implied refutation of the New Dealers' argument that old and tired men should be continued in office beyond their time.

The fact that former Governor Olin Johnson, who defeated Senator Smith for renomination, is a Roosevelt supporter is not counted for much in view of South Carolina's obstreperous attitude toward the fourth-term candidacy, the action of the South Carolina delegation in voting against the renomination of Wallace for vice president and the protest registered against the Democratic platform. This is not likely, as the Evening Sun says, that Senator Smith would have been unseated on account of his anti-administration proclivities alone.

It is only natural, too, that Mrs. Caraway should be retired as her husband had been a senator for several terms before she took office and her tenure rested largely upon his record. She has been in office for two terms, hence here is another instance wherein the oldsters in office are deemed worthy of retirement in contradiction to the New Deal contention. Representative Fulbright has made a mark in the House and will have opportunity now to progress further as a young and vigorous senator.

As the Evening Sun says, the Senate will probably profit by the exchange in both cases, and little of national significance can be read therein.

A Satisfactory Japanese Policy

THE NEW JAPANESE GOVERNMENT OF PREMIER GEN. KUNIKIDA KOISO is now in office. It has no time in announcing its intentions, at least as far as the outside world is concerned.

"Japan's foreign policy in general and East Asia in particular will remain absolutely unchanged," said a spokesman for the Koiso cabinet.

Well and good—but that the word of a Japanese official spokesman is to be regarded as anything approaching gospel truth, but in the case of the new regime it's all there is to go on. And in the case of the Allies, it's all they need to go on. If the Japanese policy is to remain absolutely unchanged, so is the Allied policy, and in the end, the Japanese militarism, aggression and exploitation beyond hope of recognition.

An interesting sidelight on the debut of the new Japanese government is what it did with Gen. Hideo Tojo, the immediate and fallen predecessor of Gen. Koiso. Not only has Tojo been stripped of the half-don job he held as premier, but he has even been put on the army retired list, which is pretty drastic treatment for a general only 59 years old.

government to accept absolutely unchanged the policy of a preceding government and then above the head of that preceding government completely into the discard, but then the Japs are peculiar people. But the Allies don't need to be too much concerned with Gen. Koiso and his policies. All they need to do is keep plugging at the task of seeing that Koiso and his successors meet the same fate that overtook Tojo—defeat and failure.

Time for the Allies To Have Fortitude

IT IS more than a coincidence that as German soil is being occupied by land troops for the first time in this war, the Germans have under way a huge "peace offensive." Dispatches are streaming out of every neutral capital, hinting at so-called grave developments within the Reich, hinting that conversations are being held, hinting this and hinting that.

The Germans have been beaten on the field of battle. They have been beaten badly. They face not only defeat, but a rout. They were beaten in the first war, but not crushed. This is a time for the peoples of the Allied nations to have some real fortitude. The temptation is very great, now that victory is assured, to think of peace and to accept what might seem on the surface to be reasonable terms.

In this kind of war there can be no such thing as reasonable armistice terms. The Germans must be battered to their knees and they must ask for the way to stop as a beaten nation. The military situation is deteriorating from the German point of view, but it has not yet reached the political point where surrender is all that remains. It is up to the people of this country to look with sound judgment upon the peace talk that is flooding the country.

When the Nation Can Be Trusted

MRS. ROOSEVELT does not trust the American people, she said so in a speech made by her the other day—let's see, just where was it anyway? Oh yes, at Antioch college, Yellow Springs, O.

"I happen to believe," said Mrs. Roosevelt, "... we will have some sort of police force which will watch us as well as our superior strength. I do not even trust our own nation, although I am sure we are a peace-loving people, and I would like to feel sure some way was found which would watch us as well as other nations."

One reaction to this by some of the people will likely be that they can be more safely trusted to keep peace than the political leaders. The declaration that the American people cannot be trusted is an extremely bold assertion, but it may not be far, however, from a correct appraisal of a nation led by the New Deal.

There is a bit of consolation in this outlook, though. The New Deal will in all likelihood get out of power at the end of this year and Mr. Dewey has pledged that thereafter the nation shall be governed by laws instead of by men. In former years the nation could be trusted when it was governed by laws and it probably can be trusted again when government by law has been restored.

Frank R. Kent characterizes the desertion of Mr. Wallace by Mr. Roosevelt as "the result of as calculated a piece of political treachery as has occurred in our history," and that is about the size of it.

In this campaign one is unable to tell whether a meeting of administration Democrats is a rally or a prayer meeting owing to the manner in which their indispensable leader is deified.

News from inside Germany states that Mussolini has accepted permanent residence at Hitler's headquarters. That should serve them both right.

High Japanese army and naval officers might as well commit suicide one way or another.

"Keep on a Inch"

By MARSHALL MASLIN

I lay there on the hillside with the grass all around me, and the sun came down through the green roof of an old oak and I dozed away the summer afternoon. And lying there, thinking of nothing at all, I noticed a little creature crawling up my sleeve. A tiny green and gray thing about as thick as a string, looping himself ahead, getting his hindlegs up to his head, swimming his head out to the front, traveling somewhere. An Inch Worm, attending to his own business.

I reached out a lazy finger and touched him. He stiffened instantly at an angle to my sleeve and looked like a little dead twig. If I had not been him moving, I'd have thought he was that twig. I picked him up and set him on a dry branch and watched. He began to travel again, looping and stretching, out toward the end of the wood. And when he came to that end and could go no further, I saw him stretch out into the empty immensity and feel for something else that was solid and that he could put his smaller feet upon and use as a road. ... But he found nothing. There was no road for him through the blue summer air. He had no wings, only his feet.

So he turned and retraced his path and set out along another twig and came, very soon to the end of that path, too, and felt about and found nothing and returned to his starting point and kept on seeking until he found the good brown earth again and disappeared from sight in the grass. ... And vaguely I seemed to remember that James Whitcomb Riley, the poet, once said that if he had a coat of arms he would put it these words: "Just keep on a-inchin'."

Just inching along is what that small worm was doing. ... Up a twig to its end, finding nothing there, turning and coming down again and inching along until he got somewhere at last. ... That rare spirit, James Whitcomb Riley—who sang so genially but was sometimes far from gay—took the inch worm's way for his own brave coat of arms. "Keep on a-inchin'." Is what he said. Keep inching though you come to an endless void. Though your heart breaks and your soul trembles, keep inching. Keep inching, though the summer sun sinks lower and lower and the long shadows creep across the field of your life. Keep inching, and you will come home at last.

Listing of Douglas for Vice-Presidency Is Viewed as Hint for 1948 Candidacy

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, July 27—Little noticed perhaps during the pressure of other events in connection with the Democratic national convention was the public statement by President Roosevelt that Justice Douglas of the Supreme Court of the United States would, in his opinion, make a good candidate for vice president and would bring real strength to the ticket.

The possible selection of a member of the Supreme Court bench for a high political office has been the subject of much comment from time to time, especially since Justice Hughes was drafted for the Republican nomination in 1916. At that time, Mr. Hughes refused to allow his name to be used in any primaries and upon every occasion when inquiry was made, declared that he was not a candidate and would not participate in any way in any pre-convention tactics.

Nevertheless, when he did leave the bench to accept the nomination the precedent led to speculation from time to time as to the availability of other members to the court. Thus, in 1940 there was much discussion about selecting Justice Roberts for the Republican presidential nomination.

Prompted by Roosevelt

The name of Justice Douglas has been mentioned in the press from time to time as a possible running mate for President Roosevelt in the 1944 campaign, but not until the president himself pointed to the name of Justice Douglas did it appear that the New Dealers were giving serious consideration to the prospect of drafting a man out of the supreme court for political office.

The fact that the president, who actually appointed Mr. Douglas to the supreme court, made the suggestion in a public letter to Chairman Robert Hannegan, of the Democratic National Committee, has occasioned some surprise because it was not believed that the head of the executive branch of the government would make such a suggestion with respect to the judicial branch of the government. There is, of course, no rule about it, and no established custom that has been violated, though there will be some who will wonder whether in the excitement of the pre-convention controversies the president did not over-

VET AT SEVENTEEN

UNCLE SAM decided that 17-year-old Sgt. De Sales Glover was too young for the army so they sent him home although he enlisted when he was 14 and had completed twenty-one bombing missions over Europe before he was 17. He is shown with his mother in their Pittsburgh home.

look the interpretation that might be placed upon his public endorsement of a member of the supreme court for political office while he is serving on the bench.

Fraternal Feeling

Mr. Roosevelt, on the other hand, has never stood in awe of the supreme court as an institution and is inclined to feel about it very much as he did when he was in Albany and fraternized constantly with the highest court in the state of New York, namely the court of appeals. His conception then was that there was no impropriety in a chief executive's discussing judicial questions with members of the high court. It is reported that Mr. Roosevelt felt that he could continue the same custom with respect to members of the supreme court in Washington, but whether he has at times consulted the justices in advance with respect to the possible constitutionality or legality of questions that might arise is not known. Certainly the relationships between the executive and judicial branches of the government up to the present administration have not been too intimate though occasionally there have been personal friendships such as that between Justice Stone and President Hoover who used to go on fishing trips together.

Embarrassing Factor

One of the embarrassments connected with the fact that the president did mention Justice Douglas for the vice-presidential nomination is that his name will be mentioned frequently hereafter with respect to the 1948 race. It will be suggested that Mr. Roosevelt has Justice Douglas in mind as his possible successor in 1948, though, to be sure, there is no warrant for the expression of such a preference at this time. It is, therefore, desirable that members of the supreme court should become actively associated with political discussions or that their names should be used by the president in connection with pre-convention politics.

Possibly if it all had to be done over again, Mr. Roosevelt might have selected some other name to go along with that of Senator Truman.

Babson Believes Bond Prices Face Downward Trend

By ROGER W. BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass., July 27—While the war continues and cash piles up, interest rates will continue low. For all practical purposes, bond rotations consist almost wholly of governments and refunding issues. There is no necessity for Mr. Morgenthau now offering more of a return for the use of funds for government purposes. Lack of competition in the bond market makes higher interest rates for government money unnecessary.

However, when the war is over and industry again seeks funds, the situation will change. The law of supply and demand will then bring about a rise in interest rates with a decline in bond prices. Hence, there is little reason for large investors now to reach for high-grade bonds except for the tax-exempt group. Most investors are better off in governments than they are in prime corporate bonds. Therefore, there is little point today in discussing high-grade bonds. Let us look at certain other issues.

Foreign Bonds

There has been considerable interest in foreign issues for some securities than in foreign governments or industrials.

Medium-Grade Bonds

With continued heavy calling of top-grade corporate bonds, the dwindling supply of these issues, plus their low yields, resulted some two years ago in attention being focussed upon medium-grade industrial, utility and rail bonds. All of these groups have had substantial rises since the middle of 1942; but the prices of many medium-grade industrials are now flattening out. This is also true of medium-grade rail bonds, while medium-grade utilities have actually turned slightly downward in the past two months.

Of all the medium-grade groups, perhaps the utilities offer the best opportunity at the moment. Entirely aside from the cleaning up of the balance sheets of many utility companies, it must be remembered that we are in an election year. If the war ends prior to November and the Dewey-Bricker ticket has a resulting good chance of being elected, then utility bonds, let alone utility stocks, should enjoy great popularity. In fact, from a psychological point of view, utility bonds may rise anyway.

Railroad Bonds

Disregarding top-grade railroad bonds, second-grade rail issues may show further strength insofar as well placed issues are concerned. Unquestionably, the financial position of most railroad companies has been greatly improved. Many short-maturity issues have been bought in by the railroad companies and interest charges after the war may be considerably less for many roads than was true in pre-war days. On the other hand, traffic is bound to fall off and many second-grade rail bonds should sell for less than at present.

Defaulted Rail Bonds

Since the earlier months of the year, defaulted rail bonds have not shown the activity that was characteristic of them in 1943. In fact, for the past several months, they have moved in a distinct sidewise direction. Some of these bonds are now selling well under the estimated work-out values for the new bonds, preferred stock and common stock that will be issued upon the termination of receiverships. The purchase of defaulted rail bonds always requires both study and courage. The profit cream may be off such issues but there may be considerable milk still left in the defaulted railroad bond bottle.

Long-Pull Outlook

For all bonds, except possibly for certain rail bonds, the long-term trend of bond prices is downward. Any decline, however, will be gradual. Until the tax laws change, we will see little change in the situation with respect to tax-exempt issues. Low-grade rail bonds are probably the most vulnerable of all issues for they may easily reflect the decrease in rail tonnage which peace is bound to bring. Least affected should be the long-pull transcontinental roads. Bonds of short-haul eastern roads may all be a better sale today than they are a buy!

Blame for Serious Tire Situation Is Placed on Doling

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, July 27—Behind Rubber Director Dewey's resignation is a tire situation with which no man who has done a great job might want to be connected.

Dewey hinted at it in a polite way in his withdrawal statement. He said "the only crisis in prospect" was in heavy duty tires where a manpower shortage exists.

The whole truth is Dewey asked the Joint Manpower Commission months ago for 6,000 men—a mere 6,000—he said were necessary to complete his tire program. He heard nothing from it. Apparently not even an answer was given.

His statement about a crisis also was too polite to reflect his inner mind. The best authorities on the complex subject do not see how the proposed production of tires for this year is going to be met. They see a prospect of a breakdown affecting all tires for civilian, bus and truck use.

An Admitted Success

Now here is Dewey an outstanding man in his business, who has done everything he can. In plant construction, synthetic rubber production and in creating a reservoir of natural rubber he has been an admitted success in his job.

But tires are being doled out faster than they are being produced while production is lagging behind schedule. The schedule for the year was 22,000,000 tires (incidentally less than half peacetime output).

During the first six months of the year, the factories were producing something more than 1,000,000 a month, about 9,000,000 in the first six months. If they can reach the 22,000,000 figure the last six months, they will be doing better than well.

In the early months of the year, the government started doling out 1,000,000 tires a month. In May this figure was increased to 250,000 and the same increases were made in June and July. The quotas for August and September have been increased almost as much again to a figure of 1,850,000 a month. That will carry everyone up to a month before election. Quotas for October and November have not been set.

Stock Pile Accumulated

The increases could be partly explained by the fact that a stock pile of synthetics had been accumulated by Dewey, amounting to around 4,000,000. With the war near an end, and nearly everyone in actual need of tires, some increase in quotas seemed justified. But where the crack underneath in the planning is apparent is in the lagging production.

Former Rubber Synthesist Jeffers got out as a success in office when his program had reached a governmental situation beyond his control.

It seems to me Dewey may be following the example of his predecessor, but this time the office is to be completely liquidated and the program continued by the various government agencies operating the synthetic plants.

Dewey is a Baruch man. The guiding hand of this one of the few sound administration ghosts chose him. This is not strictly true of Jeffers.

Baruch's Second Choice

Although it is not generally known, Jeffers was Baruch's second choice for the job. First was his own aide Hancock.

There is another break noticeable in the inner casing of this tire situation. Dewey is a private synthetic rubber manufacturer. He has long advocated a specific post-war program for continuance of synthetic time making.

In many plants the government started, construction and working cost were not too high to prevent commercial private postwar operation. Dewey wanted the government to set aside plants which cost too much, and keep them aside for possible future emergencies, and turn the others over to private business.

But Mr. Roosevelt recently said something at a press conference along the line that he did not expect the government to continue to subsidize the rubber business after the war. It was accepted as a crack at the Dewey program, although strictly speaking Dewey planned no subsidy.

Women Man Forest Fire Lines

FIGHTING FIRE WITH FIRE—Volunteers "grub out" a foot-wide strip of bare earth completely about the burning area, then set backfires within the circle.

By ROBERT E. GEIGER
AP Features Writer

HUGHES GULCH, Colo.—Bankers and ribbon clerks—and red-headed stenographers, too—make good forest fire fighters.

The United States Forest Service is recruiting thousands of them for one of the toughest home-front jobs in the nation.

They will take the places of the seasoned forest rangers and paid fire fighters now with the armed services. Crews have been organized in virtually every state. They work under forest and civilian defense officials and sheriffs.

They are a fast-action, front-line fire organization. Employed mostly in small towns at civilian jobs, they are willing to drop whatever they are doing and speed to a forest fire at a moment's notice.

"If it wasn't for these volunteers a fire might get started and burn a forest to the ground," says C. K. Collins, acting supervisor of Roosevelt National Forest.

COOL VAMPS—Girl fire-fighters relax only when the fire is out.

Forest fire danger was multiplied by war. Officials realized the enemy might send incendiary bombers against woodlands. West coast forests were particularly vulnerable. Quickly new methods were developed for fighting fires with inexperienced crews.

Number Varies

Fire fighters may number from six or seven to 2,000 or more, depending upon the size of a blaze.

Formerly they were linked in one vast team. Now the system has been broken down so that the individual is the important unit, although he still is part of a team but only for his own protection.

Under the old method, if one man or one crew dropped out from a fire fighting team, because of exhaustion or injury, it left a gap. In addition the entire crew had to be paced by its slowest, or weakest, member.

Now the forest service uses the "buddy system" in which two men work as a team. If one fire fighter becomes lost, ill or exhausted, his buddy reports it immediately.

If one man drops out, it does not slow the entire crew. Another two-man team moves in and fills the gap in the line.

The volunteer fire fighters, who soon grow to love the smell of smoke, are given an intensive schooling. First they study fire fighting principles and then the tools.

In a "graduation" exercise, Collins aimed a flame thrower at a clump of dry, diseased pines. Under them was the usual floor of dry grass, pine needles and dead branches. A stiff breeze was blowing. The flames shot upward. The crew of stenographers, housewives, judges, clerks and bankers went to work.

Backfires Started

Almost as fast as they could walk they grubbed out a "line" a foot wide through the floor of pine needles and grass, leaving solid earth. It extended in a quarter-mile circle around the blaze. Backfires were set around the circle, burning back all grass, within the flaming circle, toward the main blaze.

When the flames reached this line they burned out. District Ranger N. B. Griswold manned a marine pump and shot a stream of water into the tree tops, killing the chance of a crown blaze, the most dangerous of forest fires. Such a fire, whipped by wind, leaps from three top to tree top.

Begrimed stenographers, sweating from a half-hour's work in hot flames, dropped into shady nooks. "Spot fires all out," they reported. "And your forest firettes are all in."

Actually, officials say, girls would be used to man the emergency communication lines, cook and perform other light jobs around a big fire.

They're not expected to turn into full-fledged smoke eaters.

A Cricket Wooden Think It Cricket

WICHITA, Kas. (AP)—John C. D. Nicholson, who plays cricket, called on the lumber dealer to buy a cricket fence.

"Well," replied the lumberman, hesitatingly, "I don't just know what kind of lumber a fellow'd need. How large are your crickets?"

Normandy Gains Hold Promise of Greater Success

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
 Associated Press War Analyst

Nazi admission that Russian spearheads had punched across the Vistula southeast of Warsaw headlined the war news from Europe although sustained second day progress of a closely knit American air-tank advance in Normandy holds promise of significant events to come in the west.

As the air escorted tank columns mushroomed out to east and west from the deep penetration of enemy lines below St. Lo there seemed no question that the desperate Nazi effort to contain the Allied invasion had failed. Front line dispatches told of American infantry swarming through the air-and-tank cut gape to consolidate the ground, disrupt German rear echelon services and outflank his battle lines in both directions.

Long-Range Guns Captured
 Long range heavy guns were falling into American hands unopposed by their fleeing Nazi crews. The toll of German prisoners was mounting hourly to indicate that an Allied breakthrough that must force a general retreat across the whole Normandy front had been achieved.

West of the St. Lo dent American troops had taken Lessay and passed the Periers Nazi roadblock to threaten Coutances from the north while tank columns rolling down the St. Lo-Coutances highway pressed upon it at even closer range from the east. There was little doubt that German hasty retreat from the Coutances-Lessay coastal triangle of the Cherbourg peninsula was in progress to escape a closing Allied trap.

Teamwork Near Perfection
 The massive air-tank blow gives evidence of near perfection in assault teamwork by army ground and air forces. Nazi-invented blitzkrieg tactics are being American improved and turned against their authors.

There are glittering possibilities in the developing situation. While it is as yet doubtful that the Allied immediate purpose goes farther than to widen and deepen the Normandy bridgehead to accommodate larger forces in preparation for more decisive action, the means for immediate exploitation of enemy confusion appears to be at hand. The situation in German ranks as well as in Germany itself invites bold action.

Doughboy with Gun Marches on Gay Paree

By ADELAIDE KERR
AP Features Writer And For Five Years Feature Editor Of The
AP Paris Bureau

NEW YORK—GI Joe, on his way to Paris, probably will fight through country familiar to millions of American tourists. It is also country that has been coveted and fought over for centuries, a lush green land that has been ravaged—freed—and ravaged again. No roads carved up that country after the fashion of mid-western United States. The roads run casually through plain and valley, past tiny fields—triangular and odd-shaped—fitted together neatly in a jigsaw pattern that recalls grandmother's patchwork quilt.

Once, blue-shirted Norman peasants in wooden shoes toiled in the fields beside the little stone houses where smoke curled from the chimneys. Pink-checked, white-coated Norman girls milked cows in the barnyard. And boys and girls rode tandem bicycles down the roads, singing as they went.

Once the American tourist, glancing from the windows of his train as it sped past Carentan toward Paris, might have seen fat cattle grazing in Normandy's swampy pastures. Once, too, he might have spread creamy butter from their milk on his crisp brown-crust bread and watched the sunlight shimmer in the red burgundy as he lunched in the dining car.

This is country that made history. Country dotted with picturesque little towns. Bayeux with its Gothic cathedral and library housing the historic tapestry that depicts scenes from the career of William the Conqueror. Caen with its two famous churches, one of which holds the black marble tomb—though not the bones—of the conquering William. Lisieux with lines of houses built in the Renaissance, at last report unchanged as they have been for the last three centuries.

Most of these towns are a curious mixture of the Middle Ages and the Twentieth Century. Steep streets paved with cobblestones. Two-hundred-year-old houses whose trim acadies have never been punctured by plumbing or telephone wire. Drawing rooms where the curtains and

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day. If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sensations show there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

TOURISTS—Allied soldiers scouring Caen for German snipers pause to scan signboard pointing the way to Paris.

pictures hang as they hung in grandfather's time. Market places where fat cattle and plump chickens used to change hands to a torrent of bargaining French. Factories where linen, wool and leather goods were manufactured for the world outside.

Chances are good that GI Joe will see more churches on that historic march across France than he has ever seen before. Every town has its church or cathedral—and some are famous examples of Gothic architecture—like Notre Dame of Chartres.

How many of those historic houses and churches will be left after the Battle of France? How much will remain of Paris itself, if GI Joe has to fight his way in? Last reports from the "City of Light" tell of a very different Paris than the city of the American tourist's dream. They report the Place de la Concorde is now flanked by barbed wire and reinforced with concrete.

No one knows how GI Joe will find Paris, but if he was ever there before, he will have plenty of "must" stops to visit again: the book stalls on the Seine, the bistros on the left bank where the floor was covered with sawdust and the file mignon was a poem, the Sainte Chapelle, with its stained glass windows, glowing like the gems of a queen's jewel box.

Off-duty GI Joe will walk miles. Through the winding streets of the historic Ile de Cite in the center of the Seine. Across the bridge at sunset, while the slanting rays turn the statues to gold. Down the wide Champs Elysees, where peace-time Paris sat on cafe terraces, sipping a book. Sightseeing past the Bastille and the Invalides. And then—as Hitler went before him—to visit Napoleon's tomb.

O'Connor Refuses Extradition Plea In Gasoline Case

Whole Story Not Told, He Asserts

ANNAPOLIS, Md., July 27 (P)—Gov. Herbert R. O'Connor declined today to honor the request of the state of West Virginia for the extradition of one Maryland citizen on a charge of larceny of 2,300 gallons of gasoline and held in abeyance the request for the requisition of another.

Declaring that he considered August Z. Little, of Harford county, Md., dismissed from the proceedings, Governor O'Connor said he could find no reason whatsoever to deliver him to the West Virginia authorities.

Hawk Case Delayed
He held in abeyance, however, the request for the extradition of Otho Hawk, of Edgewood Heights, Md., who had testified that the commanding officer of the ordnance assembly plant at Edgewood arsenal had ordered him to transport the gasoline to the post from West Virginia.

Hawk identified the officer as Col. J. A. Rogers. The latter denied he had ordered the civilian employee to fill an army tank truck with the unrefined "drip" gasoline ostensibly for use at the army post.

West Virginia authorities, seeking removal of the two men, charged them with theft of gasoline valued at $115 from the Columbian Carbon Company's gas well drilling near Ripley, Jackson county.

"Whole Story Not Told"
O'Connor asserted that his impression of the case at the conclusion of hearings for the last two days was that "the whole story has not been told."

"Suspicious circumstances, to say the least, are clearly observed," he continued. "Incriminating testimony has been adduced and I think it would be most unfortunate if the case is closed up at this juncture. Other persons than the two subordinate civilian employees are under suspicion."

"They should either be cleared of this suspicion, if they are innocent, or they should be dealt with otherwise, if upon further investigation they are found to have acted illegally."

"In the light of all the above, I am unwilling to send out of the state a man who stands accused in a case which, at this time, is incomplete and concerning which he and others gave definite information which can be followed out and either proven or disproven."

William Jones, New Creek, entered Potomac Valley hospital today for medical treatment.
The Rev. A. H. McKinley, former pastor of First Methodist church, and Mrs. McKinley are visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Sanders.

Miss Ernestine See who received treatment in Memorial hospital, Cumberland, for injuries suffered while riding her bicycle on New Creek Drive, Monday afternoon returned to her home Wednesday evening. Miss See suffered a concussion of the brain and as yet has not regained her memory sufficient to tell how she was hurt. She is resting comfortably and seems normal except for the lapse of memory covering the period of something more than an hour from the time she left home about 1 o'clock Monday afternoon, until her return at about 2:15.

Barn Raising Held
One of those neighborhood events still practiced in this community, that of a barn raising, took place yesterday at the farm of Walter DeBerry, about two miles north of Oakland.

Mr. DeBerry's four barns were destroyed in the tornado of June 23, and his property was damaged to the extent of $15,000 or $20,000. Yesterday's activity was the expression of helpfulness of about fifty individuals for several miles round about. All gathered from the Underwood, Pleasant Valley, Gortner and other areas, and before the day was over they had erected the frame work and the barn was well on its way to completion.

Some preliminary work had been done previously by several Amish farmers of the Gortner community. Lumber salvaged from the wrecked structures was used.

Given under my hand and under the seal of the City of Frostburg, Maryland, this 26th day of July, 1944.

Garrett County Sections To Have Dog Quarantine

Canines Must Be Kept Tied in Northern Part until October 4

By GEORGE H. HANST
OAKLAND, July 27—The Maryland State Board of Agriculture and the Livestock Sanitary Service have announced a quarantine on dogs in the northern end of Garrett county, which will remain effective until October 4.

The quarantine has been put into effect to prevent the spread of rabies (hydrophobia) which has been found to exist in Garrett county and to protect human life and property in that area, it was stated by Dr. T. R. Shrop, county health officer.

The area under quarantine starts at the intersection of Route 40 and the Pennsylvania line, thence south to the intersection of Route 219 and the Lake Lynn Cumberland power transmission line; thence east along the transmission line to the Garrett county-Allegheny county line, thence north to the Pennsylvania line and west to the point of origin.

Posters are being distributed notifying all persons that dogs must be tied, securely confined, or on leash with a responsible person at all times and that those found loose within the quarantined area will be destroyed. The posters also state that all dogs suspected of rabies and all violators of the quarantine should be reported to Dr. Shrop, Oakland, Sheriff George W. Codrington, or Dr. W. M. Reynolds, Oakland, veterinarian of the Livestock Sanitary Service.

John H. Carter, county agent, said that since Frank Zehner, of near Grantsville, had been bitten by a rabid dog on April 27, there had been a number of cattle in that area die as a result of the disease, spread through the bite of mad dogs, and that the quarantine was placed on dogs to prevent any recurrence.

Tornado "Victim" Found
A sheep on the farm of William M. Sebald, where the tornado destroyed the barn and all outbuildings on June 23, was found among the debris of the barn on July 19, having been penned up for four weeks.

The account of finding the animal was told by Carol Miller, zonal-in-law of Mr. Sebald, who said the animal was able to stand. The sheep was found as workers were clearing up the property.

Mr. Miller said the family had received a letter from a man residing at Stephens City, Va., ten miles south of Winchester, stating he had found a note made out to James Sebald and wife, which evidently had been blown there by the tornado. Mr. and Mrs. Sebald, who occupied the farm, were killed during the storm.

Persons near Grantsville also found a war bond that had been blown there from a point in the storm area in Pennsylvania, according to Stewart Stahl.

One of those neighborhood events still practiced in this community, that of a barn raising, took place yesterday at the farm of Walter DeBerry, about two miles north of Oakland.

Mr. DeBerry's four barns were destroyed in the tornado of June 23, and his property was damaged to the extent of $15,000 or $20,000.

Yesterday's activity was the expression of helpfulness of about fifty individuals for several miles round about. All gathered from the Underwood, Pleasant Valley, Gortner and other areas, and before the day was over they had erected the frame work and the barn was well on its way to completion.

Some preliminary work had been done previously by several Amish farmers of the Gortner community. Lumber salvaged from the wrecked structures was used.

No Polio Epidemic In State of Maryland

BALTIMORE, July 27.—There is no infantile paralysis epidemic in Maryland, health officials said today, but the state department of health announced it had set up an extensive program to cope with any outbreak of epidemic proportions.

Dr. C. H. Halliday, chief of the department's bureau of communicable diseases, commenting on the nineteen cases reported to date this year, said "the disease is running just about as in other years, starting in June or July and usually running through September or October."

COVINGTON, Va., July 27.—An election to decide which union shall represent employees of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company plants at Luke, Md., Williamsport, Pa. and Covington, Va., will be held at the Luke plant August 16. C. C. Smith, national representative of the CIO, announced following a hearing here today before a National Labor Relations Board examiner.

The AP of L which now represents employees and District No. 50 UMW representatives attending the meeting agreed to permit the election.

The plant polls will be open between the hours of 6 a. m. and 6 p. m. to permit workers on all three shifts to participate.

The present contract between employees and the AP of L expires July 31.

SALISBURY, Md.—(AP)—City officials were embarrassed when they could not find the original copy of their building code adopted eighteen years ago and were forced to drop provision. Though a number of is no legal proof that the ordinance ever was adopted. A new one is being prepared.

Peas from King Tut's Tomb Flourish after 3,300 Years

PROLIFIC—"Grandchildren" of King Tut's peas flourish at Orlando, Fla. (L to r.) Col. Harlan W. Holden, Maj. Walter G. Dyer, and Cpl. Merle Tibbitts, who helped grow the peas.

AP Features

ORLANDO, Fla.—The second and third generations of three small dry peas, nearly 3,300 years old, are creating quite a stir in the Florida horticultural world. The peas were discovered in the tomb of King Tutankhamen among the precious works of art, jewels and rich furnishings befitting an Egyptian ruler of 1350 B.C.

In 1936 an English archaeologist who had worked on the Tutankhamen excavation sent three of these thirty-three-century-old peas to his American friend, Maj. Walter G. Dyer, who in due season planted them in his garden at Portsmouth, R. I.

They flourished as any ordinary pea from a seed store and the resultant seeds planted the following year brought a harvest of about a pound and a half of fresh peas.

The major brought some of these seeds with him to the AAP tactical center here and the school commandant, Col. Harlan W. Holden, planted some sixty in the sand-based soil outside his office.

Florida gardeners raised their eyebrows at the colonel's planting peas in April since the pea bearing season is during December and early January. However, by early June the plants were full grown at seven feet.

These green peas, which grow about four to six in a pod, are slightly longer, flatter and darker than the average garden variety. The pea vine bears a white wing-like flower which is a little smaller than the average.

Oddly these remarkable plants are given a wide berth by worms, green lice and beetles, which continue to chew up other vegetation only a few yards away. No explanation as yet has been discovered for this curiosity except a sergeant's theory that even the pests fear the "King Tut" curse.

Maj. Dyer ate a part of the second crop, after boiling them in the usual manner. He says they were very tasty and had a distinctive walnut flavor. There is a possibility that these peas, more heat-resistant and apparently more "bug-resistant" than the common pea, may prove the nucleus of a new southern crop.

Two Nazis Named In Conspiracy

Obscure Generals Declared Leaders

By TOM YARBROUGH

LONDON, July 27 (AP)—The Germans named two comparatively obscure veterans of the Russian front today as central figures, along with the previously-identified Col. Gen. Ludwig Beck, in the deep-laid conspiracy against Adolf Hitler which misfired a week ago.

They were infantry General Friedrich Olbricht, 65, described as the leader, and Maj. Gen. Erich Hoepner, 57. Berlin said that Gen. Olbricht, the only one of the trio on active army service last week, was executed in Berlin on the night of the assassination attempt last Thursday, and that Gen. Hoepner was awaiting sentence.

Beck Reported a Suicide

Gen. Beck, 64, who was chief of the German general staff in 1938 described earlier as "no longer among the living," shot himself upon being found in a "sobbing fit" after the plot failed, Berlin said today.

Gen. Olbricht was identified as chief of a general army department at German supreme headquarters and second in command of the German army at home. He "held the ropes of the conspiracy" in his hands because he was in a position to give false orders, Berlin said.

Accused by Goebbels

This was the man, the German announcement said, who was referred to by Propaganda Minister Goebbels last night as a plotting general who had "distinguished himself in warfare only by sabotaging every great decision." Although today's announcement did not specify the respective roles of the trio, Goebbels had said this man was "the leader" of the conspirators.

Hoepner Thrown Out

Gen. Hoepner commanded a tank corps in the Polish campaign and an army corps in the drive through France. He was said to have been thrown out of the army because of a "cowardly retreat" on the Russian front at the end of 1941. This is the man Goebbels said had been chosen to lead the German army after Hitler's assassination.

Gen. Beck, known for years as an anti-Nazi, was kicked out of the army in 1930 for opposing Hitler's grand designs on Austria and Czechoslovakia on the contention that the army was not ready.

Card of Thanks

We are taking this means to thank our friends and neighbors for the kindness extended to us during the illness and following the death of Robert Wilson, Sr.
Westport. Also those who sent floral tributes and donated the use of their automobiles for the funeral.

In Memoriam

In sad and loving remembrance of our dear son and brother, Wade L. Smith, who departed from this life nine years ago today, July 28, 1935.

COME BUT NOT FORGOTTEN
Oh, we think of you, dear Wade,
And our hearts are sad with pain,
Oh, this would be heaven,
Could we hear your voice again.
You are gone, but not forgotten,
Never shall your memory fade.
Sweetest thoughts shall ever linger,
Round the grave where you are laid.

Sadly missed by
HIS MOTHER, FATHER AND BROTHER,
MR. AND MRS. W. M. SMITH AND SON, CHARLES.
